HONGKONG, JANUARY 24, 1867.

AGAIN the mail brings us little political intelligence of a striking character, nothing but references to more trouble with the Fenians; and to continental incidents which merely represent the progress of old movements. At Home the dull season forbade the hope of startling changes, and the only news which may have been looked for with interest was that relating to the Reform demonstration which was to come off on the 3rd of December in accordance with previous announcements. It was threatened by the agitators that this assemblage would be attended by from 200,000 to 250,000 people, and some slight apprehension may have been felt that it would lead to unfortunate results. It is amusing under these circumstances to read that the gathering only consisted of 25,000 persons just about a tenth of the number boastfully expected by the Democratic party. Some rain fell and the enthusiasm of the oppressed populace for their great political leaders, their eagerness to make a demonstration which should terrify the House of Commons into passing a large measure of reform, was not proof against the discomfort of a damp coat. That most indefatigable of all demagogues, MR. BRIGHT, was of course at his post, doing his best to take advantage of the opportunity, excite class hostility and suggest disturbances and violence under cover of professions of a pacific nature. It was not he who made the danger, he only warned people of it and was no more responsible for what might follow than a man who might give warning of an eruption would be answerable for the existence of the volcano. Of course the simile is transparently inapplicable, of course those who look on calmly can see how the mere talk of possible consequences and "monoeing exhibitions of force" is equally injurious, and equally provocative, whether accompanied or not by hypocritical advice in favor of moderation. Mr. BRIGHT'S art is something to admire for its ingenuity. At the demonstration, one of the things he did was to stand forward as the defender of the QUEEN, from some childish banalité which had been uttered. He is too prudent to attack the habitual and instinctive loyalty to the throne which is always in the ascendant even with a rowdy English mob, and attacks on which would be looked upon by the educated classes as a sort of superfluous blasphemy, quite irrelevant to politics. Besides by keeping in view a pretence of loyalty which the whole tone of Mr. BRIGHT'S mind proves cannot be genuine, he is strengthened in attacking the upper classes. The good disposition of the country is being tested severely by such inflamatory language as that which the arch-radical daily offers it, and the dead failures he repeatedly makes, as on this occasion are splendid proofs of the average national sense.

THERE are few subjects about which people of ordinarily sound sense will grow so irrational, as those to which some incidents of a trivial character in themselves have lately drawn attention here,—those which are connected with the occult "sciences" of mesmerism and electro-biology. The readiness and carelessness with which people will express belief in things of a wholly supernatural character, beliefs which if they were only followed out to their logical consequences would entirely upset a multitude of other beliefs connected with the Government of the world which nevertheless such persons will professedly continue to preserve, is one of the most surprising illustrations of the loose hold which masses of people have on what they call their opinions. Moreover nothing is more common than to hear people profess a half belief in impostures like electro-biology, to hear them say, "I dare say the man,"—referring to any exponent of the quackery,—"is a humbug, but still I think there is something in it." If there is anything "in it," whatever, if the whole exhibition from first to last of the electro-biologists is not arrant imposture, if any one of the smallest manifestations which go on were genuine, they, far from being impostors would be the heralds of a new science or power in the world, beside which all the wonders of natural science put together would pale into utter insignificance. All that chemistry or electricity or the highest mechanical arts can do is in the first instance to ascertain, and then take advantage of and apply the attributes of matter, but if any man discovered an art by which he could deprive another of his volition, and dictate impressions on the senses at will, without the intervention of natural means, he would have risen beyond the limits of what has been previously considered human knowledge altogether. He would have shown that human souls are not distinct and separate entities, but particles of a spiritual system all linked together in the same way that the atoms of the material world are bound up with one another by physical forces. He would be as much greater than NEWTON, or GALVANI, or LAVOISIER, or the modern lights of the scientific world, as mind is greater and more wonderful than matter. After such a discovery as that the door would be opened to unlimited researches into the nature and destiny of the soul, the mystery of the next world might be penetrated, the secrets of creation unveiled. The wildest nonsense of the spirit-rappers might be a mere development of a power over mind, applied by the electro-biologist to mind while in union with matter, and by the spiritual medium to the same mind after dissolution. Grant that any man can say to another "you cannot open your eyes" and that the patients will is thereby subjugated and his spiritual essence placed under the yoke of another will than his own, and there is no longer justification for using the words absurd, ridiculous, in application to any claims to supernatural power which can be advanced. The fundamental belief on which all rational theories of the world must rest, is that a breath of some Divine attribute is infused into the flesh and bone of which a man is made, that this spirit whatever it is, whatever may be the transformations it is reserved for after the body decays, is something about which we know as yet absolutely nothing, about which we may frame systems of belief or accept faiths, but which is placed by its nature beyond our reach and cognizance. Man is entrusted with power over matter,—this might be said in roughly expressing the difference between human and Divine power,—but God reserves to Himself power over spirit. That is at once the result of all the experience of matter and spirit which man has been able to obtain, and the foundation on which rests our expressed disbelief in the supernatural, in the child's idea of ghosts and magic. Yet all at once some miserable charlatan destitute of even such common and crude education as would enable him to speak his own language correctly, some wandering mountebank choosing to trade on the folly of his fellow creatures instead of making an honest living by swallowing swords like the humbler brethren of Belphegor, claims to be endowed with the power which in our sober moments we declare to belong to GOD alone, and blind to the ridiculous impiety of the words, we say, "there may be something in it, he can't do all the things of course, but he can do some," or in other words "he is a humbug and an impostor, but he has found out just a few of the Creator's secrets after all."

It is too miserable and stale a task to point out the utter worthlessness of the testimony contained by the antics of people who amuse themselves on an electro-biologist's stage, or who from various motives may be induced to play into his hands. That men who shun the manifestations they exhibit, help to spread folly and falsehood, and do a thing which is distinctly wrong, unless they afterwards come forward and declare that they have been merely acting, seems to us very plain. It is not by reference however, to what goes on at foolish entertainments that opinions on this subject are to be formed. A man who had never assisted at any such performances would be in as good a position to decide on the questions involved as one who had frequented them. It is out of all reason to suppose that if the merest germ of an art so wondrous and holding out hopes of such infinite discoveries and achievements, had really been discovered, it would still remain in the hands of tenth rate travelling lecturers instead of being taken up by earnest and eminent men of science, and studied with enthusiasm.

It appears that the information we received as to the state in which the Zephyr was found under water by the divers was incorrect. From various people who have sent down divers we now hear after further enquiries that there is nothing at the bottom larger than a twelve foot piece of keel. It does not follow from this that all the powder exploded. It seems impossible that this could have been the case when it was all in separate barrels, but the hulk may easily have been shattered to pieces without a complete explosion of all the powder on board.

The Lusitanian Theatre.

The performances last evening attracted a tolerable house, notwithstanding the unpromising appearance of the weather. The Stereoptic scenes were very beautiful and were much admired. The Magnesium light however flickered and did not give so brilliant a light as it should have done. To night Mr. Weed will use the Oxy-calcium light.

Some of Professor William's tricks are very amusing, but he is too slow and tedious. The programme should be denuded of at least half the tricks. We were tired out and could not wait for the Rope-tying feat.

Supreme Court.

THE CEYLON RIFLES MURDER.

BEFORE CHIEF JUSTICE SMALE.

The court re-opened yesterday morning at 10 o'clock when Rammah Sammah a private in Col, N., Ceylon Rifles, was placed at the bar charged with the wilful murder of one Ramgy Ammah his wife on the 15th December last on which charge he was arraigned and pleaded Not Guilty.

Mr. Pollard instructed by Mr. Caldwell appeared to defend the prisoner.

The following jury were called, and sworn L. J. Gutierrez, C. A. Spring, G. Agabeg, W. S. Foster, T. Algar, T. Morgan, J. da Silveira.

The Attorney General briefly stated the facts of the case as would be gived by the testimony which would be brought forward and called the first witness for the prosecution.

Maree Mutan, being declared, stated that she was a married woman the wife of Permall who is a private in the Ceylon Rifles. She lived in the married lines. She knew the prisoner and his wife, they lived in a room below hers. On the 15th of December she saw the wife of the prisoner alive about 8 o'clock in the evening. She heard on that day about half past eight quarrelling between the prisoner and his wife, the voice of the prisoner only was to be heard. She called down to him not to make such a noise but go to the barracks. The prisoner replied she had no business to asked him such a question. He was heard to say to his wife that he (the prisoner) had conversation with some persons and had learned that she had had connection with a police constable. On hearing this the witness went down stairs, and to the Colour Sergeant's quarters, but could not find him, she returned and on the way met the prisoner running. She stopped on seeing him. He was dressed in a black shirt and trousers and was about four yards distant from the house. She heard no noise coming from the house. She called for a police constable but did not return to the house that night. She saw next day the body of the deceased at the police station.

Cross examined by Mr. Pollard.—She last saw the prisoner leave the house about 5 o'clock on that day. She knew he was on barrack duty. He did not return until she heard him talking. There were four or five people took their meals in the prisoner's house that day. One of these was a police constable, and the other four were privates in the regiment. The prisoner did not have his supper at home that night, it was taken to him at the barracks before 8 o'clock by one Palladean who did not return. Witness saw the woman have her supper that night. When the prisoner went out at 5 o'clock there had been no quarrel between himself and wife. She called the color sergeant because she knew that he was a barrack duty man and because prisoner had said to her that it was not her business to know why he was making a noise. There were people living on each side of them but she did not call them. She had called these people when she came back. She met the prisoner running and therefore had a suspicion there was something wrong. The reason why she ran for a policeman when she heard no noise was because she knew the prisoner and his wife were fighting. She did not go for the police constable because she heard the prisoner say to his wife he would kill her. There was a great noise going on and both were speaking in a loud voice, she heard some plates broken in the room before she left. She heard no scuffling going on in the room. She did not hear anything the wife said, she did not speak to witness. The color sergeant's was in the same street, she could only hear the noise about four yards from the house. There was no one in the street. The husband of the witness was in hospital that night. There is another woman living in the same part of the house as herself. Witness was alone that night. The prisoner was speaking in a very loud and angry voice. She was sure it was his voice. The prisoner when he went out in the afternoon was not dressed as he was when she afterwards saw him running, the only difference was the jacket that he had on when she saw him running. She did not see the police constable that supped with the deceased leave that night.

From His Lordship. She did not know when the guests left the house of deceased.

P. C. 190, being sworn, testified that he was on the Praya near Tai-wan-lane about a quarter of ten o'clock. He saw a Hindoo woman the first witness, after seeing whom he went to a house in Tai-wan lane in a room down stairs. The door was closed, he went in and saw the body of a woman whose throat was cut. The body was lying on the floor about a foot from the cot. There was no one else about. As soon as he saw this he went to the station and reported to the sergeant.

Cross examined by Mr. Pollard. The woman said to him "when I left the house the man and woman were fighting and when I went back I could not hear anything and am afraid to go back to the house alone."

John Landers P. C. 38 being sworn, testified that he was on duty at No. 8 Wanchi Police Station about 10 o'clock on the 15th of December. The last witness made a communication in consequence of which he went to a room on the ground floor of a house in Tai-wan lane, where he saw the body of a woman lying on the floor with her throat and hands cut. The floor was wet with blood around the body. He left the last witness in charge of the room and went to search for the prisoner. He found him in the guard room with no jacket on and his braces were hanging down and spotted with blood. As soon as witness entered the prisoner said "I have done it, I killed her, with a knife that is now in my house". Witness demanded the prisoner when Captain Gash came in and handed over the prisoner. He returned to the house with the prisoner in charge and entered it. He made a further search and found a knife in a window about five feet from the body of the woman. It was covered with blood,—knife produced. Witness then took the prisoner to the charge room, on the way there the prisoner repeatedly said he had killed the woman and would do it again.

Cross examined by Mr. Pollard, the prisoner spoke in English. He said the reason he killed her because two men were in the house and she was a bad woman. He talked at random and laughed and exulted over the deed. He appeared glad that he had done it. The room was in disorder. The quilt was torn and strewn about the floor of the room. There was also an earthen plate on the floor broken and covered with blood.

Inspector Balgay being sworn, testified, that on the evening of December 15th he went to a house in Tai-wan lane. The jacket which he produces in court he found in a room in that house rolled up in a quilt on the bed in the room.

The Attorney General here asked to put in the deposition of Kadah-Kasson at the Police Court as this man was now in the hospital with small pox and therefore unable to attend, in proof of which he offered two medical certificates to the effect.

His Lordship said he could not take a certificate of any kind in a case like this involving life and death, he must have testimony as to this fact.

The Attorney General said he though a certificate would be sufficient if it were proved that it were genuine he would however have what proof His Lordship required brought forward.

His Lordship could take nothing but the testimony of the Surgeon in attendance.

Mr. Pollard said he did not object to this deposition being put in if certain clauses were excised.

The Attorney General consented to the suppressed clause and the deposition was accordingly read. It was to the effect that the witness was in charge of the barrack guard on the night in question. Shortly after eight o'clock the prisoner requested permission of him to go to the rear. The prisoner was gone about half an hour when he returned without his jacket, and his braces down. Witness asked him what he had done with his jacket, but prisoner did not reply. He also asked him why he had been so long adding that he must report him, but prisoner still replied nothing. After a while he spoke in an excited manner and said he had killed his wife. His conduct was like that of a mad man and witness accordingly put him in the guard house. Witness had known the prisoners wife she had always been a quiet and orderly woman.

I. J. Murray, being sworn testified, that on the 17th of December he examined at the Civil Hospital the body of an Indian female. He found a wound extending from the left ear across the throat nearly to the right ear severing all the structures down to the back bone upon which there were two incisions parallel to the wound. Extending along the entire length of the wound there was a second or superficial wound. At the left extremity of the main wound there were two or three cuts, on the left shoulder also and two superficial cuts above the left breast. Both hands were cut in the palm and fingers as if by an instrument drawn through the hand. In other respects the body was that of a healthy female. The knife produced might have produced such a wound if very great force was used.

Cross examined by Mr. Pollard. There were several cuts on the hand but they could not have been produced by merely grasping. A very violent grasping could. The cuts in the back-bone could have been produced by such a knife if great force were used. There must have been two strokes to have produced the indentation in the back-bone. He has seen the prisoner almost every day in the jail, he has not appeared like a muscular man but the contrary. It is a fact in medical science that a man in a state of frenzy is empowered with extraordinary strength beyond his ordinary state.

From the Attorney General. It is possible for such a man as the prisoner to inflict such a wound with such a knife.

From the Court at the suggestion of Mr. Pollard.

"Was it not more likely if the prisoner inflicted the wounds with that knife, he was possessed with unnatural strength such as in the possession of one effected by sudden frenzy.

Objection taken by the Attorney General which was not however sustained—question allowed.

The knife in the prisoners hands is so unlikely a weapon have produced the wound described that assuming the weapon to have been used he thought it improbable that the prisoner was imbued for the time with unnatural strength. This might be created by great passion or anger. He first saw the prisoner on the occasion of the inquest. He noticed the countenance of the prisoner, he was very quiet and he had noticed no symtoms about the man to attract attention. He had seen him nearly every day and noticed nothing unusual about him. He had conversed with him through an interpreter. He said had seen nothing to lead him to the conclusion that the man was of unsound mind. He had conducted himself as a prisoner should do. It is not inconsistent with medical science that he should be quite sane now and have been on the 15th of December, in a state that would render him incapable of controlling his actions.

The Attorney General submitted this as the case for the prosecution.

Mr. Pollard then opened the case for the defence in a very able and eloquent speech to the jury, which occupied over an hour and a half in delivery. His duty was an onerous one, but as his duty would be supplemented by His Lordship the real onus would be upon the jury. This could not be otherwise than a matter of the gravest importance and he would therefore put it to them in best and clearest aspect. In a colony like this where the place was comparatively small the very nature of the place and society made it almost certain that no person could come before a jury who had not heard or read more or less and come to some conclusion in their own minds. He hoped, however in this occasion that they would dismiss from their minds and forget any and every circumstance or fact they might have heard or read and carefully and strictly weigh the evidence that would be brought before them and give a verdict accordingly. The first thing to decide was that the woman had been killed, as to this and the identity there was no question of doubt. Secondly by what mean was she killed. Thirdly by whom was the death caused. Up to that point it was only a homicide, and there were some kinds of homicide that were not viewed by the law as a crime; and lastly and most important of all was the killing such as would involve the grave crime of murder. The discussion of these would necessarily involve the understanding of the subject of murder. He wished to put the case thus. From the facts the deed could not be viewed other than as homicide and at the time the prisoner was not legally responsible for his acts; The evidence as put before the jury by the prosecution would not warrant a higher verdict than manslaughter. In treating these heads, for the sake of convenience he would inverse their order and call their attention first to manslaughter, secondly to the insanity of the prisoner. First then the evidence as yet showed nothing but manslaughter. The story of the police sergeant and of the colonial surgeon said that the corps when found were in a horrible condition, cut and hacked in a most revolting manner but the jury must not let this weigh in their minds in arriving at their conclusion. As to how when or where this deed was done there was no eye witness as far as known except the prisoner and his mouth was closed. Next there was the evidence of the woman Maree and this he thought the jury felt as well as himself was not to be credited. She had told an entirely different story now from what she had before the magistrate and he felt sure that if she heard and saw all she hid said she did she must also have seen and heard more and which from some reason she would not tell. The very things that most naturally would seemed to have suggested themselves to one wishing to tell the whole story she had not mentioned at the magistracy and he believed now that if she would, she could enlighten them as to much more in regard to this case than she had done. If her testimony stood by itself, the jury could not help bringing in a verdict of Not Guilty. Next was the evidence of the corporal whose deposition had been read, the evidence of the police who took the prisoner in charge and searched the room and beside these there was the dead body, the knife, the disordered state of the room, the torn quilt, the bits of cotton strewn about the room, the broken crockery and what the prisoner himself had said. If the case stood on all this evidence leaving out that of the woman, it would not warrant more than a verdict of manslaughter. Again the prisoner had made confession himself to more than one that he had committed the deed and further offered to show where the instrument with which it had been done was to be found. These circumstances all pointed to their being no malice or as expressed by the old term aforethought. They had never quarrelled before, had lived quietly and peacibly together and how quietly he would further on show and if what the woman Maree said was true there was nothing could raise it above manslaughter. If the jury had a doubt as any question having been proved by the prosecution then they must doubt that the prisoner was guilty of murder. There must have been malice to have made the homicide murder and there was no proof of any such malice or anything that could lead to the presumption of malice. The reasonable deduction from the evidence was that there had been a struggle, now what was the provocation of this. Might she not have aggravated her husband in various ways by taunting him about the very wrong she had been committing. From the evidence of the colonial surgeon it was quite clear that the struggle had begun before the woman's hands had been cut, for a struggle must have been the cause of the torn quilt and strewn bits of cotton, but the cotton was not bloody as it should have been had the cuts on the hand been given first; a scuffle was evidently therefore in progress as the beginning of the sad affair.

On the second question that of the legal capability of the prisoner to commit such a crime Doctor Murray had said in his evidence that it was possible for him to have been insane on the 15th of December and yet not shown it two days after when he saw him. The Coporal Kudah Kassan had said that he was like a mad man and he therefore put him in the guard house in fact all the facts he deposed to pointed to a state of insanity on the part of the prisoner on that evening. The learned counsel would bring further evidence on this point he would produce Sergeant Langdon who said he was in a very excited state and foaming at the mouth. He would put in the evidence of Captain Gash who would detail the great exertion this man had made not be separated from his wife and how finally he succeeded in getting to her Hongkong at his own expense and secretly. Further that the prisoner was a quiet man and one that had never been guilty of any violent conduct during twelve years he had been in the regiment. Was it reasonable to suppose that a man who with such a character and reputation as he had borne could become in a short space of time suddenly as it were such a veritable fiend as the one who perpetrated this deed must have been; that such an entire and utter change of character could have taken place as to have been so unnatural in half an hour without the man himself being changed. Could such a man as Capt. Gash, would say the prisoner had been, go home and commit such a murder in his really sane state. The room was more like a shambles than anything else, there was an amount of ferocity which they could not believe a man who had for twelve years born such a character was capable of, and this too upon a woman whom he certainly thought much of. It could only have done in a state of frenzy, a madness which in law renders a man incapable of committing a crime.

There were other and important elements in the case. There was absence of motive, and although the prosecution would say the absence of motive did not excuse crime and although this could not reduce the deed below the crime of murder, it should weigh heavily in coming to a conclusion on the question of insanity.

The prisoner belonged to that race of men that had the hot and fiery blood of the Oriental coursing in their veins, and it must be considered that they are therefore more susceptible and more easily moved than those of the European blood in regard to their feelings they are more easily roused and show that fiery disposition that it is known they process. Might not this man as he was returning to his duty that night have seen the very man he suspected coming out of his wife's quarters and this have suddenly roused him. Further it was well know that a man was never so mad, so insane as when worked up under a delusion, this man might have thought he saw what really had not taken place. The prosecution might set up revenge as a motive, but this would not be in accordance with the evidence or the precedence. Revenge would never have carried the commission of such a deed to such an extent as the body showed this to have been carried. The taking of life would have satisfied revenge. The conduct of the prisoner did not show revenge, had he been thus actuated he would not have acknowledged the deed and told with what he did it and where the instrument was to be found. Nor did he glory or exault in the deed like the brutes that are sent to live and die game were this the case it would be different. It was the fiendish raving of a man who had lost control of himself. If the defence succeeded in proving what the learned counsel had stated they would the jury must take his view of the case. He then called the first witness.

Capt. Gash being sworn, testified, that he commanded the A Company of the Ceylon Rifles, and in which the prisoner was serving. He had commanded the company for about four years, during which time he had known the prisoner. The prisoner had been a member of the corps for about twelve years. During that time he had never been charged for any serious offences. The report book showed only a few minor offences that the prisoner had ever been brought up for. He had never been before a court martial, or guilty of any riotous conduct. The witness was present at Ceylon when the Regiment left for this place. The prisoner at that time was most anxious to have his wife go with him. Made frequent applications to have her entered on the strength of the Regiment, in fact, applied so often that it became a nuisance. This, the witness was unable to grant him, and prisoner therefore asked that application might be made to the colonel. Witness did this, but was unable to obtain permission to have the woman entered on the strength of the company. Prisoner made a further effort when the regiment was being inspected by the General previous to embarkation by prostrating himself before that officer, but still permission was refused. The wife of prisoner nevertheless succeeded in getting here, being found on the steamer when it arrived here. Witness paid his company. The married men were allowed an allowance of rice which however prisoner never drew as his wife was never entered on the strength of the company.

Inspector Langdon, being sworn, testified that he was on duty on the 15th of December at the charge room when the prisoner was brought in by Sergeant Landers. Witness noticed the man when he was brought into the room. He was talking and the witness therefore cautioned him that anything he might say would be used against him. He then stopped and begun rubbing his hand along the bar in front of the desk. He was foaming at the mouth and his jaws clasped over his lips. His face was very much swollen. He was this way when put into the cell. He saw him afterward twice and on each occasion he was perfectly insensible.

Cross-examined by the Attorney General. He did not send for medical advice because he thought prisoner was in a heavy sleep. Witness did not think he was sick but under the influence of something to cause sleep. This was at night—others were asleep in the same cell. Spittle was running down the side of his mouth and dropping on his jacket. When the prisoner came to the charge room there was some conversation, but witness did not understand what he was talking about although it was English. Afterward prisoner spoke again saying—"I killed the woman suppose she stop in my country I cut her private parts out."

F. Douglas being sworn, testified that on 17th of December the prisoner at the bar was in his charge. On the 16th he saw him in the police cells twice, between 9 and 11 o'clock. He was in a highly excited state forcing his face against the bars, putting his hands through and hailing every one he saw. His lips were swollen as if they had been bitten and his face was swollen. His eyes kept rolling about in his head. He had a mad expression in his eyes. He saw him last about 3 o'clock in the afternoon of that day and he was still excited. Since then he has been quiet. The first two or three days he would not come out of his cell without being pushed out.

Cross examined by Attorney General. His lips were red from being bitten. His experience among the large number of prisoners that he had seen in confinement. They are all more or less excited but none so much as this. His mouth was dirty as from dried spittle when he saw him on Sunday morning. He had no conversation with the prisoner.

Mr. Pollard submitted that this was the case for the defence.

In summing up the counsel for the defence marked that he did not think it necessary to add anything to what he had already said. The witnesses he had produced had testified to all the facts he had referred to and he therefore would only leave it as it was without further comment.

The Attorney General briefly replied to the defence. He was happy that the prisoner had been so ably defended and that all the points of the law that could be brought to bear in the case the prisoner had the benefit of. The duty of the learned counsel for the defence had been to use everything in his power to the interests of the prisoner while his, the Attorney General's duty, was to protect society and in the carrying out of this duty he must briefly refer to some points of the defence. The jury must put aside all feelings of compassion in a case as serious as this, and not allow themselves to be influenced by other than the evidence. It had not been denied even by the defence that the hand of the prisoner had committed the deed, but it was claimed that he had been influenced to such an extent by the excited state of his feeling as to have been legally unaccountable for what he did. It that was sufficient excuse for the commission of grave crimes any one guilty of such a crime might reasonably say that they were in a high state of excitement, their feelings were beyond their control and therefore seek the protection of the law. There some important considerations in relation to this question of sanity which the defence had raised. There was no better guide than the words of a high legal authority on the subject who said that the important question to consider were did the man know the nature of the act he was doing and did he know he was doing wrong? If these were answered in the affirmative it could not be a question of sanity or insanity. The words of the corporal were very significant on this point—in order to carry the plea of insanity it must have been shown that this man did not know what he was doing when he committed this deed.

His Lordship then addressed the jury. The case had been presented by both the prosecution and the defence in such a clear and comprehensive manner, that he would have to deal with nothing extraneous to the evidence and law of the case. Neither had too much been said on either side or the case for the defence been put too strongly. He was glad that the case had been so able handled on both sides. Mr. Pollard had very properly divided the case under two heads or parts and he thought the jury would be materially assisted by treating them separately also. It had been as much as admitted by the defence that the prisoner had committed the deed, and this deed by itself was murder, they must consider whether the circumstances of the case reduced the homicide to manslaughter. When the prisoner went into the room the woman might have struck him first or there might have been some one of the other men spoken of in the room, who had begun the fight. If there was a fight they must also consider what was the provocation to the fight and the deed that ended the womans life. His Lordship then read over the evidence and commented upon every point brought forward in it at great length and presented the case to the jury with the greatest possible clearness. The jury must ley aside all feelings of compassion in dealing with this case and judge of it by their experience of life. He quoted authorities upon the question of sanity showing that until a man was proved to be insane they must take him to be a sane man and in the possession of his reasoning faculties. The jury must lay aside all subtle distinctions and come their conclusion as men arriving at such a truth of the matter as the evidence would warrant.

The jury retired at 5 o'clock and the absence of half an hour returned with a verdict of guilty of manslaughter unanimously. At the same time regretting that the evidence of the four men who supposed to have been in the room of the deceased that night had not been produced.

The Attorney General explained that this fact as to the supper party had not come out until the day of trial and therefore the prosecution were wholy unprepared in regard to it.

His Lordship said he would postpone passing sentence until this morning at 10 o'clock, to which time the court adjourned.

A letter from Copenhagen states that M. Stoempfli, formerly President of the Helvetic Confederation, and at present Director of the Bank of Berne, has just founded in the capital of Denmark a Company for the deepening and improvement of the port of Elsinore.

THE BISHOPRIC OF VICTORIA.

The Bishopric of Victoria (Hongkong) has at length, after a vacancy of nearly two years since the resignation of Bishop Smith, been filled up by the appointment of the Rev. C. R. Alford, M. A., formerly of Trinity College, Cambridge, and now incumbent of Trinity Church, Islington. The reverend gentleman was successively appointed to the incumbency of St. Matthew's, Rugby, in 1841, and to that of Christ Church, Doncaster, in 1846. He subsequently for some years filled the important post of Principal in the Metropolitan Church of England Training College, at Highbury. Possessing a high reputation as an able preacher and a zealous promoter of the educational movement, he appears to have commended himself to the ecclesiastical and civil powers as specially fitted for the varied and multiform duties of the Anglican bishopric at Hongkong. He has been known as a prominent member of the Evangelical body of clergy in London, and his nomination to the see of Victoria has been pronounced by the Record to be "a very excellent appointment."

We are authorised to state that a plan is under consideration of subdividing the English bishopric in China into two portions. We believe that the measure has received the approval of his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury, and has probably ere this been officially submitted by him to the Foreign-office authorities, whose consent on behalf of her Majesty the Queen is previously required in accordance with a recent Act of Parliament for the consecration of missionary bishops in foreign territories beyond the British realm. It is proposed that the Rev. W. A. Russell, B.A., of Trinity College, Dublin, and for nearly fifteen years a missionary of the Church Missionary Society at Ningpo, be consecrated bishop over the Anglican clergy in the northern parts of China and possibly also in Japan; and that the British colony of Hongkong, with the three southern ports of Canton, Amoy and Foochow, remain under the jurisdiction of the Bishop of Victoria.

It will of course be understood that the latter portion of this scheme is still far from being definitely settled and that at present we are only enabled to give this brief outline of the probable course of arrangements for two English bishoprics in China. It is probable that the consecration will take place in Canterbury soon after Christmas, and that the new Bishop of Victoria will embark for his Eastern diocese in one of the Peninsular and Oriental mail steamers in the month of March next.—China Express.

AUSTRIAN EXPEDITION TO THE FAR EAST.

Encouraged, probably, by the success which has attended her late antagonists, the Italians, Austria has now resolved on despatching a treaty making expedition to the Eastern seas. Admiral Tegethoff, the hero of Lissa, is the officer appointed to the command, and it is generally believed that a worthier selection could not have well been made. A frigate and a corvette are already undergoing special preparation for the service, and will be ready to sail in February next. The Admiral will be furnished with magnificent presents for the King of Siam and the Shiogoon of Japan, including marble statues of the Emperor of Austria, richly bound books and pictures from the imperial collections, sets of Chinese and Japanese works published by the Academy of Sciences at Vienna, portraits of the Imperial family, photographs of Austrian scenery, and specimens of all the principal productions of the Empire. Besides the diplomatic element the mission is to include commercial experts and scientific men. A sum of 200,000 florins has been appropriated for its expenses, which, it is remarked, is a handsome allowance for such a purpose from a State supposed to be on the verge of national bankruptcy.

THE NEW FRENCH AMBASSADOR TO PEKING.

The Comte de Lallemand is appointed Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary at the Court of China, in place of M. Berthemy. The Count has just been raised by the Emperor to the dignity of Commander of the Legion of Honour, for his services in the international sanitary conference of Constantinople, which lasted for more than twelve months, and of which M. de Lallemand was first French commissioner; the same honour has been paid to Sahib Effendi, first Turkish commissioner and President of the conference. Dr. Bartoletti, second Turkish commissioner, and M. Pinto de Soveral, Portuguese commissioner, have been made officers of the Legion, and M. Kalergi, Greek, Dr. Muhligh, Prussian representative, as well as Dr. Naranzi and Baron de Collongue, secretaries of the conference, chevaliers of the same.—Ibid.

NEW STEAMER FOR CHINA.

A very fine iron screw steamer for China, built by Messrs. Hall, Russell, & Co., Aberdeen, has been launched. The following are her dimensions:—length between perpendiculars 170 feet, breadth 24 feet, depth 14 feet, tonnage 395 tons (gross). She will have a flush deck from stem to stern, with a house 90 or 100 feet long built thereon, will be schooner rigged, and fitted with direct-acting engines of 72-horse power (nominal), which it is calculated will give her an average speed of 11 knots. She is named the Taiwan, and although not of very large size, in speed, equipment and finish, she will in all respects be a first class vessel. Captain Roper, well known on the China coast, will be her commander. She will leave Aberdeen for Hongkong under steam early in January.—Ibid.

LAUNCH OF A CHINA CLIPPER.—Messrs. Steele and Co. have launched a new China clipper, which was named Titania by Mrs. William Steele. The adjectives "handsome," "fine," "elegant," "beautifully modelled," &c., hitherto applied to the vessels lately launched by this and other firms for the China trade, are altogether inadequate for the expression of and idea of the build of the Guinevere, Ariel, and Sir Lancelot, whose models were such that the term "yacht-like" should be applied to each, and if to them, then specially so to the Titania, which may be aptly designated as an enlarged and improved copy of the lines of the schooner yacht Selene whose triumphs in English and French waters are already known to our readers. The Titania is of the following dimensions:—length, 190 feet; breadth, 36 feet; depth, 21 feet. Her burthen is 1,225 tons, and she is registered in the highest class at Lloyds, being a composite ship, and, from her speciality of build, of very strong construction. She will be masted with steel spars and yards; fitted with every convenience for the saving of labour to the crew; and have low bulwarks, so as to lessen the action of adverse winds. The Titania, whose model cannot fail to augment—if this be possible—the reputation of Messrs. Steele for the construction of this class of traders, is the property of Messrs. Shaw, Lowther, and Maxton, a London firm eminent in the China trade, and owners of successful competitors for the prize awarded to the first teas of the season. She will be commanded by Captain Deas, an experienced gentleman long in their employment, and will load here for Shanghai. After the launch, were proposed success to the ship, and the healths of the owners, to which Peter Maxton, Esq., responded, giving in a most complimentary manner those of the builders.—Ibid.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

PRUSSIA.—The new Constitution for North Germany is to be laid before the plenipotentiaries of the several States on the 15th inst. A sum of 1,500,000 thalers has been voted to the generals commanding in the late war. The Crown Prince of Denmark has visited Berlin.

PAPAL STATES.—The evacuation of Rome by the French troops is nearly complete.

CANADA.—Great excitement was caused by the reprieve of the Fenian prisoners, and it was feared that an attempt would be made to lynch them.

UNITED STATES.—Congress was opened on the 3rd inst. The President adheres to his former policy, and urges Congress to adopt it. General Butler has again urged the impeachment of the President. The steamer Scotland has been lost at Sandy Hook.

MEXICO.—Maximilian has left Vera Cruz, but whether to return to the capital or proceed towards Europe is uncertain. It was reported that he would shortly arrive at Gibraltar.

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

Hongkong, Wednesday Evening.

The unpropitious weather has no doubt had a quieting effect upon the general markets to-day and the arrival of the mail about two quite put a stop to any transactions that might have been in progress. Some business was done in Opium during the early part of the day at $592.50 for Patna and $574 for Benares, but the mail stopped business. The market for Malwa has not yet opened. The closing price at Bombay averaged Rs 1,650 per chest. In the other branches nothing note worthy has transpired, business has been flat on all hands.

The commercial news by the mail is unimportant. The bank rate remained at 4 per cent and Consols were quoted at 88¼ to 88⅜. The resuscitation of the Agra bank seems to be favourably progressing, telegrams had been received from Bombay and Calcutta assenting to it by both shareholders and creditors. Telegrams had been received announcing the suspension of Messrs. Cumming Beaver & Co. of Singapore. A call of £1 per share is announced by the China steam ship Co. At the bidding for bills on India the Minimum was fixed at 1s. 11d. The Tea market was still dull and sales were passing of heavily. Seven ships had arrived during the fortnight. Silk was also and prices were drooping. The prices for Cotton remained unchanged sale of about 1,000 bales China been made.

ANGLO CHINESE DICTIONARY, QUARTO,
BY THE
REV. W. LOBSCHEID.
COURT AND PUNTI DIALECTS.

PUBLISHER'S NOTICE.
THIS WORK was commenced in November, 1861, the computation of the author then being that it could be comprised in one thousand four hundred pages, and would occupy two years. Many unlooked for obstructions, chiefly of a typographical nature, materially retarded the progress of the work in the first instance, and these being overcome, the author discovered that he had underestimated the extent and the importance of the vast task he had undertaken, and that it would occupy fully double the time and space which he had at the outset computed.
The publication of a work of such magnitude, and presenting so many, and such varied obstacles, seldom falls to the limited resources of one single individual, as occurs in this case. The first part of the work is now issued, partly at the requests of the author and partly to afford the Foreign Community of China an opportunity of extending that assistance to the publisher, which under the circumstances is usually so freely accorded.
The Price of the book complete will be $30, and it will be published in four parts at $7.50 each. But this objection presents itself to the sale of the parts separately, should the purchaser of one or more parts not take the others, a number of incomplete, and consequently valueless, copies will be left on the publisher's hands. To remedy this objection, in consideration of the circumstances already alluded to, it is hoped that those who see fit to patronise the undertaking by purchasing the first part, will not object to signing an engagement to take the remaining parts as they appear, or should they prefer it, to pay for the entire work in advance.
Missionaries supplied at Trade Price.

PACIFIC MAIL STEAM-SHIP COMPANY.
THROUGH UNITED STATES' MAIL LINE TO NEW YORK.
THE SPLENDID SIDE-WHEEL STEAM-SHIP
"COLORADO,"
3,750 TONS REGISTER,
WILL LEAVE HONGKONG
FOR SAN FRANCISCO,
TOUCHING AT YOKOHAMA,
on the 13th day of
FEBRUARY, 1867,
SO as to make close connection with the ships of this Company leaving San Francisco, for Panama and New York, March 19th, and at Aspinwall, with the French Transatlantic Company's Steamer of April 1st, for St. Nazaire; and the West India and Pacific Company's Steamer of same date for Liverpool:—
Pending the determination whether the ships touch at the Hawaiian Islands, the precise date of departure from Hongkong cannot be fixed. Timely notice will be given.
The Steamers of this line touch at Acapulco, Mexico; and at Panama, connect with the Panama R. R. Co's. Steamers for the West coast of Central America, and with the Pacific Steam Navigation Co's. Steamers on the West Coast of South America.
The Service of this line between San Francisco and New York is tri-monthly, while Steamers leave New York daily for European Ports, thus affording travellers opportunities to make stoppages en route not necessarily of more than 10 days' duration. The Steamers from San Francisco skirt the Coasts of Upper and Lower California, of Mexico, Guatemala and other of the States of Central America, to Panama. Passengers cross the Isthmus by the Panama R. R. 47½ miles, to Aspinwall, where a track is laid upon the Co's. dock to the Ship's side. From Aspinwall the ships for New York Steam across the Carribbean Sea to the Eastward of Jamaica, and between Cuba and St. Domingo, and passing smaller Islands to the North, emerge into the open Atlantic. New York lies in the most direct route from Aspinwall to Europe, just as San Francisco is in the nearest track a ship can follow between Hongkong and Panama.
THE "COLORADO"
Will continue quarterly voyages, again leaving San Francisco April 1st, and Hongkong, middle of May; San Francisco, July 1st; Hongkong, middle of August; San Francisco, October 1st; Hongkong, middle of November, and will be joined by the Co's. New Steam-ship
"GREAT REPUBLIC,"
OF 4,000 TONS REGISTER,
and others of like capacity constructing for the service, as soon as they can be completed (during 1867) and placed on the line between China and California.
Arrangements are in progress for issuing through tickets to European Ports by the various routes and lines across the Atlantic.
